BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like calomel, and they don't cause the griping and cramps of calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums, so do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Headaches, "biliousness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lumpy" and "heavy." Note how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 50c per box. All druggists.

Brings Word From Europe
That Germans Have Supplies
for Year and a Half.

HINTS AT ITALY'S PLAN.

Tells About Rescue of Mrs.
Corey From His French Estate in War Zone.

"Talk of peace between the warring nations of Europe at this time is an absurdity," said William Ellis Corey, former President of the United States Steel Corporation, who returned today aboard the Cunard liner Lusitania. "By October of next year will be ample time to consider the prospects of peace, at least over the horizon. From what I have been able to learn from informed men in France and England, the Germans have ample supplies of provisions and munitions of war to carry them for at least a year and a half of strife. They can undergo two summers and a winter, but it is problematical how they could weather the second winter."

"It is equally ill advised to speak of the United States profiting tremendously by the war. No country is going to find great profit in the wholesale destruction now being carried on in Europe. All that we can hope for in this country is to fare better relatively than European countries." ITALY WILL BE NEUTRAL IF EXPENSES ARE PAID.

Mr. Corey said that from a reliable source he had gained inside information on the course Italy was about to follow in the world conflict. If Germany and Austria will pay her for the expense of mobilization, he said, Italy will remain neutral to the end of the war. But if she fails to get this compensation she will cast her lot with the allies.

The Steel man told of exciting adventures he underwent in his effort to rescue his wife, who was Mabelle Gilman, an actress, before her marriage. Mrs. Corey was at the Chateau Villagenies, the Corey estate a few miles out of Paris, with thirty servants when the war came. Corey left here on Sept. 2 to make his way through the lines to his wife's side. In Paris he found great difficulty securing a conveyance to take him to his chateau, and official red tape had to be unwound before he could pass through the lines of the military. He arrived at his estate just two days after a battle had been fought at Colombier, a few miles away. The roar of the guns had terrified his wife and the servants, and the latter were in a state of panic when Corey arrived.

Services were at the gate of his chateau, and 8,000 head of cattle, designed to supply beef to the soldiers, were pastured on the beautiful lawns of the place. Before he left with his wife the American steel man secured the promise of the military authorities that they would respect his property as much as they could if hostilities actually occurred about it. SAYS GERMANY ORDERED A REIGN OF TERROR.

James Barnes, a former Washington newspaper correspondent, who said that he had been in France, Germany and Belgium on a mission for the American government and that he was going to Washington to report to the President, commented guardedly on the Germans' conduct of warfare.

"The reign of terror covering Europe to-day," he said, "is not an accident but by orders from headquarters in Germany—from the highest headquarters. It is an organized reign of terror. Individual commanders charged with this and that atrocity or piece of vandalism are not responsible. They receive their orders from superiors. Germany's idea is to conquer through terror." Thomas Hildell, who lives at the Knickerbocker Club here and who managed to get close to the scene of fighting in France, can claim distinction as the first of the American army of souvenir hunters that inevitably will invade Europe at the end of the war. He brought back with him a German helmet which he picked up off the battlefield at Meuse. Inside the helmet is the inscription: "Kattler, Musketeer Ninth Corps, Ninety-third Infantry Saxony." He also brought with him some fragments of the precious stained glass shot from the windows of the Rheims cathedral. He visited the cathedral after the German bombardment, Hildell said, and it is his opinion that it will be impossible ever to restore it to anything like its original splendor. Barclay Warburton, a son-in-law of John Wanamaker, and selling agent for an American-made machine gun that sends 600 shots a minute out of its barrels, was one of the Lusitania's passengers. He said the Russian army was equipped with this type of weapon and that it did dreadful execution.
